DANIEL JIMMERSON WINS 1ST CIRCUIT GOLD RING

Casual poker player comes out on top amongst experienced final table.

Daniel Jimmerson claimed his first World Series of Poker title after going toe-to-toe with a powerhouse player. The native of Atlanta, Georgia navigated through a field of 122 entrants in Event #4: $365 No-Limit Hold'em at the Horseshoe Southern Indiana Circuit series. It was a first-place finish worth $10,248 and a sought-after, WSOP gold ring.

The tournament took two days to complete, and going into Day 2, Jimmerson was near the bottom of the final seven players when it came chip stacks. Even as the final leg began, Jimmerson ran into a bump in the road.

"I missed the first like seven hands of the tournament. Literally ran from the parking lot to the table to try to make it in time," Jimmerson explained, referencing to his late arrival to Day 2. "I only had eleven and a half big blinds coming into the day."

The 32-year-old was also severely lacking in experience, compared to the competitors around him. With all the odds against him, Jimmerson still managed to hang in and boost his position.

"Got a couple hands early to get it on an average stack... Then the ball just got rolling," said Jimmerson. "I mean I felt comfortable playing with those folks."

There were multiple gold ring winners among the seven Day 1 survivors. The most decorated player at the final table was seven-time gold ring winner Josh Reichard, Jimmerson's eventual heads-up opponent.

It was the last hand of Level 21 when Jimmerson scooped the final pot. Reichard was at risk with top pair against Jimmerson's middle pair. The river card gave Jimmerson trips, leaving him as the Event #4 victor and Reichard one spot short of an eighth Circuit title.

“Obviously very, very fortunate run out at the end there against a very, very, very good player that was beating me up all final table, but sometimes luck just can’t be beat,” stated Jimmerson. “Definitely have a tremendous amount of respect for the guy.”

Along with his first gold ring, Jimmerson was awarded 50 points toward the Casino Championship for his achievement. The local player must go back to work in his hometown of Louisville, Kentucky, but will likely be seen again in the Horseshoe Southern Indiana poker room.
