Paul Cookson Wins First WSOP Circuit Gold Ring

Stateline, NV (November 1, 2013) – Event 8, $580 No Limit Hold'em: Paul Cookson's A5 held up against Gerald Morrell's J6 on the final hand, giving Cookson the victory, his first WSOP Circuit gold ring, and $20,299. Gerald Morrell's second place finish was good for $12,547.

Paul Cookson was in the middle of the pack when the final table got underway at about 11:30pm PDT on day one. He says he had been "systematically navigating the field" on day one and could not remember ever being all-in and at-risk. By the time day one wrapped at 2:25am, only four were left and Cookson had moved up to second in chips, behind Gerald Morrell.

Day two began with four players at 2pm and in an early hand that may have been Morrell's undoing, they were at the river with a pair of 9s on the board, but no straight or flush was possible. Paul Cookson bet, Morrell raised, and Cookson moved all-in. Morrell tanked for several minutes before finally surrendering what he later said was trip 9s, thinking Cookson had a full house. Cookson showed the bluff — K7 for nothing but a King-kicker to the pair on board — as he collected the chips and took the chip lead.

John Song was the short-stack with only 20 big blinds at the start of day two and he was the first to depart in 4th place ($6,655). Casey McCarrel was next to hit the rail in third place ($9,057) when he got his chips in against Paul Cookson and was dominated, KQ to AQ.

Heads-up play began at 3:12 pm and lasted nearly two hours. Paul Cookson started out with a big lead, about 3:1 over Gerald Morrell. They traded places when Morrell doubled up with pocket 8s versus pocket 6s and Morrell had a 4:1 chip lead over Cookson.

Cookson continued to build and got close to even, then caught a huge double-up with Q9 against Gerald's AQ when he flopped a 9. After that hand, Cookson had over 1.6 of the 1.74 million chips in play.

On the final hand, Morrell was all-in with J6 against Cookson's A5. The board was A K J Q 2 and the tournament and WSOP Circuit gold ring was Paul Cookson's. He has been playing poker for about seven years and is self-taught. He complimented his opponent saying "Gerry [Morrell] played the best out of everybody, including myself". This is Cookson's first victory on the circuit, but he has four previous WSOP Circuit cashes including one final table.
