Robert 'Bobby' Corcione Wins First Circuit Ring in Event #9

Making it a family affair...Bobby's father watched as his son won his first ring

Robert 'Bobby' Corcione bested a field of 178 entries to win his first World Series of Poker (WSOP) Circuit ring, and $14,418. Corcione is well known in the Foxwoods poker scene, and is also known for his deep run in the 2012 $10,000 Main Event, for $294,600. Today Corcione can add Circuit ring winner to his already impressive resume.

Corcione said that he felt confident coming into today. That confidence was boosted by his father, who stood on the rail all morning long as his younger name-sake took home the title, and crossed into the Foxwoods Casino Champion lead.
