BETTER LATE THAN NEVER; ADAM OWEN TAKES DOWN EVENT #2 AT HARVEY'S IN LAKE TAHOE

Owen showed up late for Day 2, but it didn't matter as he was able to ride out his big stack to a victory

Adam Owen started Day 2 of Event #2: $400 No-Limit Hold'em Multiflight Re-Entry as the chip leader, bagging up the biggest stack of the three starting flights, but when Day 2 began, Owen was noticeably missing from his seat.

"I was pretty annoyed with myself," Owen said, admitting that he woke up late. "I hate doing that. I haven't done anything like that in over three years. I remember the last time I did it as well."

But thankfully, Owen didn't miss too much, just a level and a half. When he arrived, players were on a scheduled break and he had only lost about 50,000 chips from his stack that started at 755,000.

From there, Owen went wire to wire. He quickly hopped back into the flow of things and started amassing a huge stack. When he arrived at the final table he already had amassed 30% of the chips in play, and he didn't relinquish that lead.

Owen attributed his success to running good but said that some of it was momentum as well. Owen's on a bit of a hot streak as of late, winning four tournaments in the last few weeks, two in England and one in Reno as well as this one.

"It sounds a bit silly, but I think there's something in it, in momentum." Owen explained about his hot streak. "Like when you're used to making deep runs you're going to be a bit more patient, I would say and you're going to identify spots a lot better. You're going to generally be more used to the situations that you find yourself in."

For Owen, the circuit ring comes after many close brushes with World Series of Poker stardom. Owen has on more than one occasion been in a position to capture a bracelet but hasn't quite been able to close one out just yet. This circuit ring represents Owen's first victory at the World Series of Poker.

"It's really cool," Owen said about the win. "A ring is a properly recognized trophy. I've gone about two years without a win and I've won four tournaments in the last six weeks or something. It just comes in streaks."

The 25-year old poker pro from Folkestone, UK now has over $500,000 in World Series of Poker earnings. For his victory Owen will take down $28,473 and his first World Series of Poker Circuit ring. Owen also cashed for $655 on Flight 1B, which brings his total winnings for this event up to $29,128.
