KEVIN JOHNSON CLAIMS GOLD IN IP BILOXI MAIN EVENT

Johnson earns career-best $127,319 and Casino Championship seat in win

Memphis-area player Kevin Johnson arrived at the Circuit IP Biloxi Main Event final table and found many of the seats filled with previous Circuit ring winners. He wasn't one of them of them at the time, but a day later, he's joined that ring-winning list.

"I felt pretty good coming in into the final table," the 28-year-old Johnson told the WSOP. "It was already the most I've ever won, so it was all a freeroll."

Johnson just returned to active poker play this year after logging his first recorded live cash back in 2013. Obviously, 2018's gone well, and his plans for 2019 already include a long-sought chance to play the WSOP $10,000 Main Event in the summer.

"I've been traveling the Circuit most of this year. I was playing in college in the early 2000's, and then I got a job and took a break. But I got back into it about a year ago. $10,000 of my win will go to the Main Event in Vegas."
