ANDREW HECKMAN WINS 2ND CIRCUIT RING IN EVENT 1

After having his 1st Circuit ring stolen, Heckman was motivated to win another

The opening event at Foxwoods is in the books and Andrew Heckman was the last player standing out of 207 entries. He locked up his second career World Series of Poker Circuit ring along with $16,566, the lions share of the $68,310 prize pool.

"It feels really good because I told this kid I wasn't gonna duplicate my other ring, just to give me more motivation to win that one – and that was two years ago," said an elated Heckman, after explaining that his first ring was stolen.

Heckman generally only plays the Circuit stops that come to Foxwoods. "I'm definitely a better tournament player than cash, but I play cash a lot. It feels good to win tournaments."

The newly crowned champion got into poker via his father, who used to be an avid player online. "He was really good. He won tournaments all the time. I used to stay up long nights and watch him when I was a kid before school and stuff. He'd tell me 'go to bed' and this and that," laughed Heckman.
