CAROL FUCHS WINS OMAHA 8 EVENT FOR 1ST RING

Mixed Games Pro pairs Circuit gold ring to WSOP gold bracelet accolade.

World Series of Poker bracelet winner Carol Fuchs added to her gold collection Friday evening at The Bicycle Casino Circuit series. The Mixed Games Pro topped a 96-entry field in Event #9: $400 Omaha 8 or Better, winning her first WSOP gold ring.

Along with the piece of WSOP jewelry, Fuchs was awarded $9,290 for the accomplishment, pushing her WSOP earnings to over $300,000.

The 46th annual WSOP in Las Vegas (2015) is where Fuchs captured her gold bracelet as she took down a $1,500 Dealer Choice event for $127,735.

When asked to compare the two first-place experiences, she replied "That [gold bracelet] was really shocking. This one… I worked really hard at, and it was really fun. The Bike puts on great events."

Fuchs was met with some tough competition in Event #9. She made it through Day 1 with 11 other and sat in the middle of the pack, chip-wise.

A final-table redraw occurred during the first level of Day 2. Shortly after, the legendary 'Miami John' Cernuto, owner of three WSOP gold bracelets and two gold rings, was knocked out in ninth place.

Needless to say, once Cernuto, one of the best Omaha players of all time took his leave, a collective sigh of relief was felt among the eight remaining players, including Fuchs who, from there, built up confidence and subsequently her chip stack.

With momentum going her way, Fuchs picked up steam and eventually defeated Ruben Vera heads up for the Omaha 8 or Better title.
