GARRETT PATRICK WINS DEBUT GOLD RING IN $400 NO-LIMIT HOLD'EM

Transient worker from Colorado scores Circuit gold ring and $30k at Choctaw Durant.

Garrett Patrick cruised to his first-ever World Series of Poker gold ring and a near-$30,000 payday on Monday at Choctaw Durant. The Colorado native outlasted 440 opponents in Event #4: $400 No-Limit Hold'em, a tournament that took two days to complete.

Day 1 encompassed 12 hours of Texas Hold'em. Toward the back half of that time, Patrick had amassed a commanding chip lead. The final table was reached with just over an hour left in Day 1 and Patrick boasted nearly 100 big blinds, almost double his next closest opponent.

Chips evened out a bit by the end of the night, but Patrick still held the chip lead when the seven finalists bagged up their stacks. Day 2 restarted at 12:00 p.m. Monday and things went array very quickly.

"One guy was missing from the table," Patrick revealed. "But, you know, we just had some action cards, coolers against coolers, basically. And we had some short stacks sort of pushing too."

Action was swift during the Day 2 finale. Coolers aided in reducing the final table to short-handed play. Eventually, Patrick and John Hurt faced off for the ring and that is when the most critical cooler of all came to fruition.

The flop came Nine-Seven-Four. Then, the pivotal turn card was brought an Eight, giving both Patrick and Hurt a straight. Naturally, all the chips got in and when cards were turned up, Patrick held Jack-Ten for the nut straight, which trumped Hurt's nine-high counterpart.

Patrick raised his hands in victory, claiming the WSOP Circuit gold ring and $28,985. He then proceeded to take some victory photos with his beloved four-legged friend, Keno.

"It was awesome. Have my wife here and Keno," Patrick stated, referencing his dedicated rail of his wife and dog. "It was fun. We had a good time. It was a really good time here at Choctaw."
