CLINT MOORE WINS FIRST GOLD RING

Clint Moore takes down the $400 Omaha 8 Or Better to earn first ring.

Clint Moore just took down the $400 Omaha 8 event at the Bicycle Casino World Series of Poker Circuit.

“It feels good. I have been playing for a long time, but I haven’t been taking the game seriously until a couple of years ago. I have just been playing for fun, but I have been killing the cash games lately, so I said, ‘let’s try to get back in the tournaments’, and I feel like thirty years of experience is now finally paying off. I’m dangerous whenever I sit down now, real dangerous,” Moore said after winning his first WSOP ring.

The two-day event drew a field of 135 players, with only eighteen remaining when Day 1 concluded. Moore bagged the chip lead after a red-hot Day 1. However, the significant Day 2 starting stack dwindled down to crumbs halfway through the final day.

“At one point, I was really short and needed a duce to keep my Championship dream alive, and I got there on the river,” the Detroit native explained his critical double-up.

Moore is a retired Air Force veteran not residing in Lakewood, California. His competitive nature played a crucial role in his success at the Final table.

“Thirty years of playing, and I’m just now taking it seriously. Now, I can compete. The sick thing about me is that I’m a sick competitor. I was a stupid basketball player, born on Michael Jordan’s birthday, February 17h. It’s a sickness; I’ve got a competitive streak in me that I can’t put out. Now I’m moving on to bigger and better things,” Moore said.

The 57-year-old eventually found himself heads-up against Frank Inglese, who final-tabled the $400 Omaha WSOP Circuit Event at the Bike in 2017. The tough heads-up battle lasted for over an hour before Moore finally could take it down. Moore is now hoping to continue his run and hope that he will get the respect that he deserves among his peers, now that he got a ring around his finger.

“I have to be dealt with now. I ain’t a joke no more. When they see me they’re like ‘he ain’t no joke no more’, he ain’t that old Clint that you can just run up on and do what you want to and disrespecting, you know what I mean?,” said the latest WSOP Circuit Champion.

Moore earned $12,115 and his first WSOP Circuit gold ring with the win. He also earns a seat in the Tournament of Champions, held in Las Vegas in the summer of 2022.
