CHRIS CONRAD WINS 3RD WSOP CIRCUIT RING AT CHEROKEE

Conrad came back from being the shortest stack seven-handed to winning another ring

It was a rollercoaster final table for poker professional Chris Conrad of Playa Del Carmen, Mexico. He started off second in chips, dropped down to the shortest stack with seven left, and then got heads up and exchanged the lead several times before locking up the win. Conrad has now won his third World Series of Poker Circuit ring along with $27,300 and a seat into the Tournament of Champions in Las Vegas in July.

“It feels good. It’s been a long time since I’ve won a live tournament,” laughed Conrad. To be accurate, it has been four years since his last recorded win, but Conrad has been playing online a lot during that time as well. “I started a stable during Covid. I wanna keep working and studying and helping people with poker. And keep playing online. I’m 37 and I realized that traveling week-to-week is something I don’t wanna do.”

When asked what is most important to him when comparing cashes and trophies, Conrad responded: “Money and family. Family is always going to be first and obviously the more money you make you get to spoil and indulge your family.” The poker pro has amassed more than $1.3 million in career earnings, and this is now his 10th career tournament win.
