YASER AL-KELIDDAR WINS 1ST WSOP CIRCUIT RING AT CHEROKEE

Former lawyer and businessman wins a WSOP Circuit ring to go with his gold bracelet

Event #10: $400 No-Limit Hold'em is in the books and Yaser Al-Keliddar was victorious for $25,013, topping a field of 359 entries to win his first World Series of Poker Circuit ring and a seat into the Tournament of Champions. "It feels really, really good. I haven't played very many Circuit stops, and I don't have many chances like I do for bracelets every summer," explained Al-Keliddar.

"Now that I've won the ring I can go back to my main hobby which is trolling people on Twitter," smiled Al-Keliddar. The comedian from Arlington won a gold WSOP bracelet in 2018 and now has some matching jewelry to add to his collection. When asked what his next goals are in poker he responded, "winning a second bracelet, or having another six-figure score."

Al-Keliddar sharpens his game by talking poker with his friends Jason Brauda and Matt Emmel, and also credits them for this win. "I busted out of the $1,100 and I was sulking and very annoyed about it. They told me to get into the turbo." He did just that with only 15 minutes left before registration closed, and the rest is history. "It really worked out," said Al-Keliddar. "It's a lot of fun to be here."
